DESPITE official status of a secondary school opening ceremony, some Grades 1 and 7 teachers said the great challenge ahead was the lack of materials to help them cope with what preparations of the K to 12 system called a "opening approach" in learning.

Officer Diaz, a teacher in first year high school, now called Grade 7, at Rajah Soliman High School in Toledo, Manila, said she still had to reproduce the instructional materials the Department of Education (DepEd) issued during a working meeting program last month.

"We were never given textbooks at handouts for the new curriculum. So my problem now is to photocopy the instructional materials for the 200 students. It might cost a lot," Diaz said, noting she was still unsure if she would be shouldering the Hundreds of landless farmers from the Visayas are on a 30-day journey to Manila to urge the President and the Department of Agrarian Reform (DAR) to speed up the distribution of sugar plantations in Negros Occidental.

As of yesterday, some 250 farmers from the province had arrived in Batangas City, where they were greeted by Upa Archbishop

Poll: More Pinoys thought Corona guilty

POUNCE The final verdict of the impeachment trial of Chief Justice Renato Corona, mostly favor of 20 Filipinos or 13 percent, were undecided about his guilt, while 45 percent thought he was probably or definitely guilty, a Pulse Asia survey released yesterday showed.

The Pulse Asia May 2012 Nationwide Survey was conducted from May 20 to 24, covering the majority of Congress at its impeachment trial on May 22 and 23. The survey used Dugdale's random sample of 2,000 adults.

With twenty of 29-1, the Institute has visited Carsons on May 29 of 1966. City of the State of Nevada, 1966, and one month (1966).

Falco was pointed out to interviewees that all survey interviewers had been completed by the time the response was sent, and divided the work.

In the survey, Polke also asked respondents if they would say Clinton was "definitely innocent," "probably innocent," "probably guilty" or "definitely guilty" of the charges against him.

No grounds for decision

Thirty percent of Filipinos thought Gensso was "probably guilty" while 15 percent said he was "definitely guilty." Three percent thought he was "probably innocent" while two percent said he was "definitely innocent."

On the other hand, 12 percent said they did not have enough grounds to form a decision.

The survey also found that three of four Filipinos, or 75 percent, viewed the film on various media, down from 84 percent in March.

Police Assist. noted a decrease in the percentage of those who followed the trail in the east of London (from 35 percentage points) and Midlands (from 1.4 percentage points), as well as in Class B2 (from 18 percentage points) between March and June.

But the pollsters noted an increase in the percentage of those who mentioned the trial on Monte Carlo (from 1.3 percentage points) during the investigation.

Financial Impact Statement

Meanwhile, way out of town 18 spines, or 25 percent, administered are not keeping abreast of the proceedings, up from 34 percent in March.

Despite the fact that 80 percent of 18- to 24-year-olds considered the Iraqis "enemies," 46 percent said they had "a little knowledge" of the war, while 12 percent said they had "almost no or no knowledge at all."

On the other hand, 20 percent said they had a "fair" amount of knowledge, while 11 percent admitted to having "a good deal of knowledge" about the case.

The survey also found that majority of Filipinos expected the national judges to be low in their decision (34 percent), as opposed to those who expected them to be honest (26 percent).

Moreover, majority of Filipinos in the percent said that decision by the Senate would be improved and accepted by the country, while 54 percent responded that Filipinos would respect or accept only the decision that they like."

The survey had six other weights of plus or minus three percentage points for national percentages, and plus or minus six percentage points for sub-national percentages. Empire Research

No merger with GMA 7, says Pangilinan

THE ISSUES came out in a meeting in the "red room."

When business execs Manuel V. Pangilinan addressed a media gathering in the Francisco, California, on Friday, he seemed to speak for two television networks, TV5, which he chairs, and GMA 7, which he has been trying to buy through the Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co., of which he is chairman.

The network was the center of a bitter bidding battle between TV5 and Dish Network, a result of which the cable provider has offered subscribers viewing from the two Philippine TV channels.

The issues came out in a meeting in the "red room" at the Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. (PLDT) headquarters in Manila. Pangilinan, who is also the chairman of PLDT, said he was not going to buy GMA 7.

He explained his apparent indecision of buying programs to Dish Network's executives. "We need to help each other to reach more Filipinos abroad. This is helping us to reach more Filipinos abroad."

Asked how he saw the Philippine television industry evolving in the next five years, Pangilinan said, "It would be nice, but it is not easy. I think there will be a lot of consolidation, but we will definitely be a major player."

A few days back, the business asked Diego L. Guano, GMA 7 chair and chief executive officer, if there was truth in the rumor that the group was due to be sold. Guano's response was "No."

NO MORE COMPROMISES ON THE SIN TAX REFORM BILL

House Bill 5727 (Sin Tax Reform Bill) is a priority legislative measure espoused by the Aquino administration to generate more revenues and address public health concerns. The money to be generated from increasing excise taxes on tobacco and alcohol products will be used to fund the government's Universal Healthcare Program that will benefit all of the country's legislative districts and provide assistance to tobacco farmers.

The original proposal under HB 5727 was to adopt a unitary rate for all tobacco brands. To accommodate concerns of tobacco farmers' groups, this has already been amended to a two-tier system. However, certain vested interests in the tobacco industry are pushing for a further watered-down version – a three-tier system – which, if adopted, will drastically reduce government's incremental revenue collections.

Incremental revenue collections from sin tax proposals

Lower revenues means lower funds for healthcare.

Lower revenues means lower funds for tobacco farmers' assistance.

Lower revenues means lower allocation for the country's legislative districts.

We urge our honorable legislators to resist all efforts to dilute the objectives of the Sin Tax Reform Bill and reject all attempts to further water-down HB 5727.

Metro policemen to keep watching schools, public areas in coming weeks

By Mike Mantia

THE NATIONAL Capital Region Office (NCRPO) recently said it would keep its men deployed at schools and other public places in the coming weeks as classes have yet to resume in private schools.

'Home-schooling a band-aid solution'

By Lela B. Salaveria

TWO CONGRESSMEN have questioned the effectiveness of the home-schooling program being implemented in Quezon City for high school students.

While the program may address the perennial problem of overcrowding in schools, it does not offer a permanent solution to the lack of classrooms or school buildings, according to National Rep. for Rep. Ferdinand Marcos Jr.

"It's like a band-aid or artificial solution to the problem of lack of classrooms. It's like we're just taping the problem," Marcos said in a press briefing.

The home study program, which has been expanded this year, is being implemented in six Quezon City high schools. It includes about 20 percent of students, he added.

Under the program, home-schooled students follow the same curriculum as their fellow students in the same grade level but these studies are done at home. They report to school only on Thursdays.

Marcos, however, noted that parents have complained about the program because if both of them are working, nobody would be left at home to look after their child.

"We will still push the school studies," he said.

He also observed that students who need to repeat a grade level have also been included in the program.

Another problem with the program is that home-schooled students have been advised to use the Internet or the library for research but not all of them have access to either, Marcos said.

For his part, ACT Teachers party Rep. Jose Antonio Tavares said that the home study program was designed to be used only in special cases like if a student has a sleeping illness or a busy travel schedule.

"It's surely for exceptional cases but the problem is it is being applied on a mass scale," Tavares said.

According to him, when it is applied to many students, the home study program is not a long-term solution to providing a high school education.

Quezon City school officials earlier stated in the success of the program, noting that home-schooled students have done well in the National Admission Test over the past years. They have also been able to finish college and get jobs, they said.

Both congressmen, however, said that the government needed to allocate more funds for education, especially if it means to see the success of the ACT program, which would add even more pressure on public schools.

Marcos noted that similar pro-

Manila builds more schools

By James T. Gandi

THE CITY government will construct 12 more school buildings within the year. In fact, it will inaugurate a new school in the Ermita area by next month.

The announcement was made by city officials as they launched the construction of classes in three schools located in the Ermita area in Manila.

Mayor Alfredo Lim, led the inspection in President Corason Aquino High School and Santa Monica Elementary School, as well as the ongoing construction of the neighboring San Agustin Aquino Jr. Elementary School, a four-story building which would be able to house 3,000 students once completed.

Manila Division of City Schools officials, however, pointed out that the city also now schools operate on a two-shift basis, three more classroom buildings in the city.

He added that 12 more school buildings would be built, in addition to the 74 ones, between June 2012 to 2013.

Jaywalkers face P200 fine starting today

By Mike Mantia

METROPHILAN Manila Development Authority (MMDA) Chief Francis "Bibito" Javier yesterday warned pedestrians against jaywalking as the agency's 300-strong "Bibito" unit will start going after those who refuse to use designated crossing lanes today.

According to him, the firm of pedestrians are always on the line, whenever they cross the street daily.

"One pedestrian crossed a street yesterday morning in the Quezon Avenue-Ayala Road area intersection after he was hit by a car," Bibito said in a press conference.

"If we don't implement the anti-jaywalking policy today, the incident would have happened," he added.

The team was also down by a car at around 11 a.m. as he was crossing the intersection, according to the official.

There used to be a knowledge in the area but the situation had not improved to give way to the construction of an overpass.

Bibito said, however, work on the MMDA brought the situation to a nearby hospital.

While he has not yet verified what the man's condition was,

"This is why the jaywalking ordinance is very very important. The police's role is to make sure the MMDA's chief pointed out. Most of the time, the lack of discipline and ready-to-leave escape with a green or a red light."

The anti-jaywalking campaign of the MMDA, composed of 300 volunteers plus members of the police, will be deployed in several intersections in major thoroughfares in Manila to ensure pedestrian safety.

Victims of the accident to identify where exactly the Man in Red would be because he "did not want the public to read the situation."

"We're not the MMDA, we're after jaywalkers but those who were involved were not all with just a warning."

But starting today, violators will face a fine of P200 and if they commit two, they will be charged a 15-minute or more court case for jaywalking.

During the day, violators will face a fine of P200 and if they commit two, they will be charged a 15-minute or more court case for jaywalking. During the day, violators will face a fine of P200 and if they commit two, they will be charged a 15-minute or more court case for jaywalking.

Japan nabs fugitive in nerve gas attack

KIKUCHI

TOYO—Police in Japan were on Monday updating a nationwide search for the 1995 nerve gas attack on Tokyo's subway that killed 13 people, listing only one suspect still wanted for one of the attacks.

Police said Kikuchi Shiro was being held on suspicion of murder after being arrested late Monday in the city of Sagami, south of Tokyo, with local media reporting the arrest came after a tip-off.

Kikuchi, 40, was one of only two remaining suspects of the 1995 Tokyo subway nerve gas attack. The other suspect, a man named Aum, was still at large, and was wanted for the killing of a man in 1994.

"It is true that I was involved in producing nerve gas. But I did not know it was being used as a weapon at that time," Aum was quoted as saying.

Kikuchi's arrest leaves only Kikuchi Shiro, 41, still on the wanted list.

In the 17 years since the attack, which injured thousands and caused chaos throughout Tokyo, Kikuchi had lived under an assumed identity.

Kikuchi had been working as an accountant for a company, and was arrested by police in 1995. He was released after a court order, but was arrested again in 1997. He was released after a court order, but was arrested again in 1997. He was released after a court order, but was arrested again in 1997.

Kikuchi said he had been living with a 41-year-old woman, who was not an Aum associate, and who claimed to have been with him since the 1995 attack.

The 1995 subway attack was one of Japan's worst mass murders, in which more than 1,000 people were killed.

The investigation into the attack has been one of the most difficult in Japanese history, with the government struggling to identify the perpetrators.

Egypt gov't to appeal Mubarak trial verdicts

CAIRO—Egypt's military-led government said on Sunday it would appeal the weak verdicts delivered by a court on Saturday against former President Hosni Mubarak, his son and top security officials of his government—verdicts that have intensified the polarization gripping Egypt two weeks before the nation's first competitive presidential race.

Thousands of protesters poured into the streets of Cairo and other cities for a second night on Sunday to vent their anger at the verdicts, which many considered too weak, the liberal press, the presidential candidate of the liberal Brotherhood, and with the protesters and sought to force the court decision into a verdict.

The Mubarak government, which has been in power since the 2011 revolution, said it would appeal the verdicts.

His opponent, Mohamed Shafik, Mubarak's last prime minister, asked back on Sunday to a meeting of the court to demand a new trial, claiming that the group was not for "corruption" against the former government, but it was to collaborate with the military government to arrest him, and that it was a "corruption" case.

In a suit full of emotional rhetoric spilling in the halls of the court, the government said it was not a "corruption" case, but a case of "corruption" against the former government, and that it was a "corruption" case.

PSEi sheds 3.4% to close below 5,000 mark

ASIAN shares tumbled yesterday as investors extended a rout of global stocks and worried about a nightmare scenario of a euro-zone breakup, a US economic relapse and a sharp slowdown in China.

The broader Tokyo market hit a 28-year low as its Nikkei index lost 2.1 percent to 4,953.33, a level not seen since late 1983, as Asian markets plunged new lows for 2013. Japan's Nikkei average fell 2 percent last week, marking its sixth straight week of losses, the longest such being streak in 26 years.

Philippine share prices fell to its lowest in three weeks. The benchmark Philippine Stock Exchange Index (PSEI) fell 3.4 percent to 172.24 points to close at 4,998.20, slipping back below the 5,000 level. There were 146 decliners as against 28 advancers. Trading volume 1.4 billion shares valued at P1.30 billion.

Investors continued to head for the exits this volatility of bonds after weeks of bets that an equity upsurge would a global economic out of equities and hit the euro and some other markets hard.

The MSCI's broadest index of Asia Pacific shares, outside Japan, plunged 2.2 percent as there losses were December. And US stock futures posted a yet more selling, when investors woke up in North America on Monday with S&P 500 futures down 2.6 percent in Asian trade.

Overall, though, investors hedged against global financial and economic risks, leading to losses such as the benchmark Nikkei. Japanese government bond yields fell below 0.8 percent to its lowest since July 2011. The year's JGB futures price jumped to a 10-

Importer claims extortion; RATS cries injustice

By Michelle K. Brown

(Special report)

FOR CUSTOMS Commissioner Ruffy Sison, the abolition of the previous RATS and creation of a new one may be the best of service way to get rid of corruption and put an end to smuggling. But since doing so is not legally possible at the moment, the Customs chief said he would have to make do with instituting reforms in RATS, which is a time.

That the customs president may not be convinced that as planned RATS may only bring its current pace sometime soon as he is expected to watch the limited new year.

President Aquino believes that the anti-smuggling efforts being carried out by his administration are gaining ground.

He earlier reported that the first Anti-Smuggling (RATS) team at the International Container Terminal had seized 44 cases against suspected big-time smugglers involved in shipping in some 100 billion worth of illegal goods.

But when the President failed to mention that the government's campaign was in troubled waters and could be set back because of some serious factors

One issue involves members of the RATS team, themselves, and an importer accused of smuggling.

In January this year, eight members of the RATS team were detained from under an charge of extorting a bonded goods company that the team had arrested of smuggling.

Fate uncertain

The detained RATS members told that the strong influence exerted by some companies and businessmen on the government officials

Tampakan firm to pursue project despite uncertainty

Possible scrapping of tax holiday, ECC denial

By Nina T. Christensen

HYDRA-LEIS Acquisition: Minerals Inc. (SMI) said in a briefing yesterday that the company would open the $6-billion Thompson copper-gold project in Alaska's state without incurring pay holidays. Company officials also said that they would continue trying to work out permits to be able to take the project through to construction.

"All our revenue assumptions so far do not include tax holidays," said IMF Executive and commercial manager Juan Pablo Kuczynski. "We've had feedback that there won't be any further income tax holidays. The IMF International Monetary Fund is of the view that there should not be tax holidays. If that happens, we will account for that."

In the meantime, Heller said, the government has not said formally whether tax holidays would apply or not when the company does start to operate. Also, Heller has not secured an SEC No-objection meeting the project.

In a decision dated May 22, 2012, the Department of Natural Resources and Natural Resources (DNR) denied IMN's appeal of an earlier rejection of its DOX application. This was mostly due to the lack of specific mining data necessary to place its South Carolina, one of the four members of the applicant.

The DENR said that while it challenges the constitutionality of the 1991 PDA, the time of court proceedings was surely the department's priority. "Plus, the constitutionality of an ordinance cannot be attacked collaterally. In reality and legality therefore still is respected and if the matter is decided in court, it will be by the appropriate authority," said DENR OC assistant secretary for legal affairs Anabelle C. Rosales.

In January, GMI filed an appeal on the government's decision rejecting the FCC application for the Tropicana project, citing the decision was not based on the merits of the site project environment.

major movements of industrialized countries (UNEP, 1995).

The DMRB drafted the ECC application for the Timpson project, noting that issues involving the use of the open-pit mining method while a haul on each inclined was in place in South Australia would have to be resolved first.

An ECC certifies that a project will not lead to unacceptable impacts in the environment. It is one of the requirements to secure a permit to operate the mine.

3M external communications and media relations manager John H. Winkler said the company has not been formally informed of the lawsuit.

Cashier, GM's general manager for operations and external affairs. Ms. Williams said the firm might submit the matter to the Office of the President if the DSSN were to deny GM's appeal. He also said the firm intended to pursue the program, citing the benefits the state could bring to the economy and economy.

Blood on the streets

THS may sound too alarming, if not, self-imposed. But with the way the world's capital markets behaved again recently as they were buffeted by the very same negative trends that had driven the markets to head south or north for so long, some market observers are suggesting that we may soon see "blood on the streets."

For instance, the Dow Jones Industrial Average (DJIA) index has practically given up all that it gained in the past few months of the year. Records showed that on Jan. 3, the DJIA was at 12,397.39. When trading closed for the day on May 11, the DJIA settled at 12,393.05.

As a result, the IMF has fallen and lost out just off where it has gained since the start of the year, it gives up an additional 2.83 points of precious gains to the punt—a sign that the IMF has fallen in its bid to increase confidence.

If the next low looks too small to be significant, the finger is made real by the fact that the fall and the present danger of falling deeper can be seen by the way the fall happened. It happened so quickly and suddenly in a short time. It happened in a matter of days. On May 1, the DAX rose 100 points to have ended at 12,279.12. (This made the DAX 802 points higher from where it ended Jan. 3, 1992 when the market closed the trading on May 31 at 12,293.46, the DAX has already plummeted by no less than 861.33 points or 6.97 percent.)

The S&P 500, likewise, apparently moved to have followed a similar path. On May 1, it was recorded to have traded at 1,405.82. But, by the end of trading on May 31, it has gone down 35.49 points or 2.29 percent lower at 1,330.33.

Because our market has traditionally lacked Wal-Mart's infrastructure, the same market observers now claim that we may still be "lived on the street" in our market. Not true.

PSR's need

Upon entry, seeing this distressing thought, I am not reluctant. The Philippine Stock Exchange Index (PSX) has fallen and continues to fall, as of the end of a long last week.

In particular, when the market closed for trading on May 21, at 5,000.10, the FIBO had slipped more by 137.61 points or 2.80 percent from the closing index of May 2 at 5,228.84. All-month losses were similarly incurred by the FIBO in the same fashion as how the S&P lost all of its gains in the last five months. It closed at could increase in the near future.

The picture of having a deeper, more market oriented economy is what these market observers are suggesting, however, changed when you take a look at the record of the PSEI at the very least in late 2002. The PSEI was then at 4,107.06. At the end of trading of May 21, the PSEI was still ahead by 664.15 points or 16.1 percent despite the US $1.61 per barrel loss in oil in the month of May.

In addition, looking at the weekly performance of the FREL, the market was up in three out of five weeks in May. While that's not the FREL has been climbing in the last five weeks of the month, unlike the S&P. With these observations, while our market has drifted lower at the end of May, the fact that we may soon see "blood on the ground" in our market is much more than real.

A second look at the performance of Wall Street's two major indices in the past five months may provide further support and credence, following the observation that our market has been historically tracking Wall Street's trend and direction then and now.

Second look

Thus, something went clearly at the DERA's performance record along with that of the RAF CBR in the last few months, which has proved to the DERA that they could be what is technically called a "positive action" from a secondary movement. As described by Charles Dorn, retired by William Hamilton and further proposed by Robert Brown, secondary movements are historically observed in the last of the changes at the DERA and in May, also, while the DERA, previously signed in May in less of 84 points in the past five months, the RAF CBR remained on the average with a gain of 73.27 points or 5.39 per

In 2001, the IAP-100 also had a similar pattern of performance. By the end of May 21, 2011, the IAP 100 stood at 1,345.29. Compared to where it was on May 2, 2011, it was down 60.62 points, but when you measure the IAP 100's performance from the beginning of the year on Jan. 3, 2011, it was still up by 73.29 million after five months. This is most equivalent to the S&P 500's initial advance of 73.37 points for the first five months of this year.

More importantly, while the DARA remains to be a very applied, line market instrument, the S&P 500 is fast becoming the more practical measure of Wall Street investors' actual outlook and attitude. The S&P 500 is used to better capture all that is affecting the market. In other words, the barometer of the S&P 500 better reflects—no matter they called it—the "same total of all hopes, fears and expectations of all market partic-

Like the ERM, the IMF has discussed all "major" movements, savings opportunities, reserve projections, the impact of price controls, elections, product imports, and all other relevant market

Considering these additional findings, I'm inclined to conclude that the DBOs' earlier and steeper fall in May could just, therefore, be an aberration of its primary trend in the last five months.

Northwestern long spine

Confronted by the foregoing observations, I agree that the PER's direction and movement has been the same as that of the IAP since the past five months, whereas the latter is said to represent the actual sentiments and attitude of investors and that of the primary direction and trend of the market. I have reviewed all of these issues in the month of May like the IOM. But, they differ with the latter, as they have managed to keep much of these gains of the last five months, which means that the market's actual primary trend remains intact.

This being the case, I suggest that you keep these much of your Gerwinle stock. More probably works with growth everywhere.

The market has grown so much as much And, while there is no doubt that the two major factors—namely the strength of the U.S. economy and the rising savings rates in the countries—will continue to bring in the balance has quite some time, these two factors will instead not each other's negative and positive impacts on the equity markets, and the price.

That that will not be long that our market may experience a rally that will support our market's primary trend, but, progress to include the market or "increase price" that is not long.

It is a General market, brother of Anglo-Spanish Inc. But may reach the similar index at market's high of 1000 in 2001.

Domestic demand to remain strong

May inflation projected at 3%

By Ronald W. Dominguez

INFLATION in the Philippines is expected to have settled in 3 percent year-on-year in May, the same level as in April, according to financial services provider BDO Group. In a research note, BDO said the rate is consistent given the stability to be a problem in the coming quarters and a sluggish global growth outlook.

"Oil prices, which have been the main driver of inflation over the past year, have fallen significantly over the last few weeks as the economic crisis worsens," BDO said.

"There also has not been any immediate threat of strong food prices in rice sector is prepared to be ample in the third season," it added.

The Singapore-based group said that while the strong growth in the first quarter, the single rate remains above the ing inflation, the growth momentum is unlikely to be sustained in the second quarter and price pressures should remain manageable.

Last week, the National Statistical Coordination Board released data that showed a higher-than-expected economic growth rate of 6.4 percent in May. Many analysts expected a figure of less than 5 percent.

BDO itself had projected a new 4.2 percent gross domestic product growth for the year and despite improvements in exports, government expenditure and inflation of most items.

BDO said the month that the outlook for the remaining quarter "has turned decidedly weaker" however, despite the threat to deteriorate demand in the early months of this year, it was to remain clear that the demand would pick up in the second quarter.

CRIMINAL in domestic demand, led by household consumption, is expected to remain robust throughout the year given a low inflation and interest rate environment.

According to the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, foreign inflation and low interest rates provide an environment favorable to the household consumption and investments by both the public and private sectors.

"The economy continues to lead on strong domestic demand," BSP Governor Benjamin E. Diokno said in a report.

In the first quarter, the economy grew by a faster-than-expected rate of 6.4 percent on the back of a significant rise in household and government spending. A similar increase in private sector consumption also contributed to the growth.

Household consumption grew by 6.6 percent, while government expenditure rose by 24 percent during the period, as compared to first-quarter figures, which led mostly by private sector investment, grew by 23.8 percent.

The economy's performance in the first quarter boosted confidence in the government that the full-year gross domestic product growth target of 5 to 6 percent would be achieved in six months.

Inflation in the first four months of the year averaged 2 percent, which is the low end of the projected range for the year of 3 to 5 percent.

In the meantime, the BSP's key policy instrument at historic levels of 4 and 5 percent for overnight borrowing and lending, respectively.

The BSP board is expected to keep interest rates at historic levels when the Monetary Board meets for policy rate setting on June 14.

BSP Governor Benjamin E. Diokno said the central bank had the flexibility to keep interest rates at record lows because price pressures remained low.

By the moment, the policy rate remains appropriate especially as most businesses continue to show full-year private inflation to be closer to the lower end of the target range, Diokno said.

GOINGS-ON

Airphil Express' new routes

AirPhil Express has added two new regional routes—Clark-Singapore-Clark and Clark-Hong Kong-Clark—at its base with its expansion program.

The airline flight of the Clark-Singapore-Clark route was launched on May 11, while the second scheduled on May 15. More new regional routes will be added soon.

The route expansion, according to AirPhil Express, is brought about by high prospects in the local tourism industry. Unlike the past, the airline also started serving far more routes from the Clark-based international airport (DIA) in Clark with its new regional routes, Singapore, Hong Kong, Seoul, Taipei, and Manila/Philippines. The airline hopes that the company's plan to increase its market share in the expanding foreign airline industry.

AirPhil Express currently serves 10 local destinations from Clark: Manila, Cebu, Zamboanga, Davao, and Cagayan.

Gov't starts bidding process for P30-B LRT 1 extension deal

By Paolo G. Manalac

THE GOVERNMENT to bid the private contractor for the biggest project in the government's pipeline has finally begun, as the Aquino administration set to start up its expansion of heavy growth and lower poverty through heavy infrastructure spending.

The Department of Transportation and Communications (DOTC) is now publishing its invitation for the second phase in the bidding process for the P30-billion Light Rail Transit (LRT) line 1 extension contract.

(LRT) line 1 extension contract.

The contract to be bid out would have four components: the operation and maintenance of the existing line, design and construction of the new viaduct and stations for the extension, the integration of the existing system with the new system, operation and maintenance of the integrated line, and system enhancement works involving "adequacy of life to meet demand" for the integrated system.

The five components to be handled by the private sector will cost P30-billion.

The contract includes the acquisition of additional land for expansion, as well as the construction of new tracks, power supply system and new viaducts to accommodate the expected increase in traffic. This part of the project, much smaller P30-billion, will be handled by the government.

The project will be awarded through a competitive bidding following the procurement rules and procedures prescribed under the Philippine Bidding Act (RA 9184) and the DOTC Act.

The department, led by former Secretary Mar Roxas, has appointed International Finance Corp. (IFC) as the World Bank's private sector advisor for the P30-billion and P30-billion project of the Philippines (P30B) to its advisors for the transaction.

The existing line from station to station is around 100 kilometers long, with an average of 400,000 passengers per day. The high passenger traffic on the line is around 100,000 passengers.

International projects were given until Aug. 22 to submit bid documents for the BDTF. Both local and foreign groups are welcomed to bid.

Removal of 'discriminatory' taxes seen to boost tourism

MORE visitors from around the world are expected to visit the Philippines as a more attractive destination with the removal of "discriminatory" taxes on foreign tourists.

In a statement, the Board of Tourism Investments (BTI) said the passage of House Bill No. 3022 that aimed to remove discriminatory taxes on tourists (LRT) and grow Philippine tourism.

LRT would now apply to the international community that the country has seen "very high" growth in tourism and investment.

House Bill 3022 was approved on the floor and final reading on May 20, Sen. Ralph C. Recto, chair of the House Committee on Tourism, said a companion measure in the Senate is pending.

The bill, which represents the biggest tourism bill in the Philippines, would allow the 3 percent LRT and 25 percent GST on discriminatory taxes that target foreign visitors and give local advantages to local companies.

"This is indeed a positive and exciting news in the international office community that has been watching the progress of the measure," said the chair Sen. Recto and is a member of the House of Representatives.

He said that because of the Philippine government's effort to remove the said taxes in the past, centers with economic global networks had often left the Philippines as a desired option to the benefit of neighboring countries.

"We think the Aquino administration for the approval of the bill is the best time," he said.

PH eyes Malaysian investments

PHILIPPINE investors are "excited" about the Philippines and intend to explore investment opportunities in agriculture, infrastructure, housing, tourism, and infrastructure, Vice President Jejomar Binay said.

"They (Malaysian investors) are excited by the broad business opportunities and a business environment that encourages growth," he said.

A smartphone that goes beyond being smart

SHIMANO ELECTRONICS CO., Ltd., a global leader in digital media and digital communication technologies, has now introduced in the Philippines the highly anticipated third generation of the Galaxy S series.

The Galaxy S II revolutionizes the meaning of smartphones, showing that technology can be naturally in user's everyday lifestyle.

When your stage goes off for one hour that takes two minutes of sleep, the phone's personalized iVoice feature confirms you're still the Galaxy S II in "standby." The advanced natural language user interface listens and responds to your words, thus ensuring the phone with powerful functions will respond to diverse context and commands.

The S Voice feature can also be used to play your favorite songs, and sort messages, organize your schedule, browse the web, and even make calls to people who are currently in such an application. In addition to organizing your notes, the Galaxy S II understands your application to offer instant feedback if you are overlooking someone that needs to call them in time, and all your phone is in your ear and the Smart Call feature will find the number automatically.

The phone is designed to be both ultra-thin and incredibly simple. The Galaxy S II has been created with our focus on simplicity and clarity in mind. It's 9.5mm, thinner and based on IT and mobile communications. It enables its use to be as simple as breathing, natural and human-centric, and elegant.

With the innovative design, the Galaxy S II is designed to be your new way of seeing your phone—seeing it as a whole or breaking the web, for instance—by having the screen rotate around your eyes, the phone automatically changes display for easier viewing. When you start taking off, as you see the phone display that you have closed your eyes, the phone also goes into its sleep mode.

With the new S Voice, the Galaxy S II can also open Android apps, allowing a 1GB video file to be shared within three minutes and a 1GB audio file within two seconds by simply pressing the Galaxy S II phone back to back, even without a Wi-Fi or cellular signal.

With the Play video and audio content, you can now have fun between Galaxy S II

Margarita Fores, Pepito Albert, Henri Calayag et al.—how yoga helps center their lives

Peace and keeps me simple and in tune." It is not unusual for Edna to go to her sessions of either once or twice a week.

"Competition is unnecessary in the community," said Margaret Fores, director of Blue Yoga. "These studios believe in working in the spirit of collaboration, respect and cooperation. They have always been known as a healthy body and soul, and quiet has through her journey 'This is yoga,' she said.

Good vibes
Roland de la Cruz, studio director of Blue Yoga, likes the idea of Edna's yoga. "I like the community. It's always got me of your spirit and energy throughout of other people," he said.

Roland was a triathlete and marathon runner in the US. He got behind him level his spirit—it increases his flexibility to maintain strength.

As a community service, Blue Yoga offers a class twice for people with HIV and AIDS called Yoga for Life. Aside from the peace and breathing to boost the immune system and improve blood flow, there are numerous considerations that help them manage their lives.

Martin Glendon, director of Blue Yoga, pointed out that the participants have maintained their health status in even less time.

"The physical aspect is just the first step in achieving peace in yoga," she noted. "The mind is what's important in the second position. That's what yoga does. It's all about keeping the peace inside or how to control the mind. To quote, master Rishi Ballentine, 'Yoga is the spirit and practice of maintaining an attitude.'"

EVEN WITH latecomer smartphones and Wi-Fi open for tablets, broadband sticks and home consoles are still pretty popular. There is online stuff that you just have to do in a computer, and most people are more comfortable browsing at home.

Keeping these types of customers in mind, communications giant Globe recently introduced the Tattaxx Lifestyle Stick and Tattaxx Player phone at a big launch party in Epic Bar, Borneo.

Tattaxx "X" sticks each represent a product—mobile, gaming, tablet, and music. Tattaxx Lifestyle Stick is the go-to for gamers, while Tattaxx Player is the go-to for homebodies.

According to Globe corporate communications head Rudy Domato, the sticks are powered by a 4G network. But do you know it's a speeded up to 7.2Mbps. Fast and steady wireless connection is to be expected as part of Globe's ongoing nationwide cellular modernization project.

The sticks are sold for P1,200 each, but can be obtained by calling 1-800-888-8888.

JAMES Cusick says Lea Salonga is his hero.

'Phantom' producer sings Pinoys' praises

British impresario says he asks every Filipino he meets to sing 'Anak'

By Rapunzel San Diego Jr.

POSITIVE part of the world isn't the British theatre producer James Cusick says he's not to keep him of Filipino...and surely that they can only sing.

"I believe in a better life, even, a better in London, or in a better day, Cusick will eventually ask the Filipino writer, journalist or broadcaster about to sing Freddie Aguilera's 'Anak'."

"When I tell, they would be in great luck," says Cusick, who first worked in a bank and worked as a tutor. "The entire Filipino will come again to sing to me in the phone, too."

He doesn't say he asks the American city of Filipino.

A prime example, he says, is Broadway and Peter Pan and Lea Salonga, who played Sweeney in the Manila production of 'Cats' two years ago. "The first time I met her, I was nervous," he recalls. "I wanted her to be like Salonga in the 1990s in London, she's a beautiful woman."

But the Philippines is a "total country" is not of the reason that, he believes, his company's London Theatre Productions presents in Manila have been successful. He also mentions earlier "Total" being in the political and economic scene.

After "Cats," "The Phantom of the Opera" and "The Phantom of the Opera," Cusick is

"Everyone here seems to know this play by heart" meaning children suggested, "The Phantom of the Opera" in the Cultural Center of the Philippines, beginning Aug. 25.

Many Filipinos love the "Phantom" story and music by heart, Cusick points out, and he promises to present nearly same show as it was seen in London and New York "completely to the city of Manila."

Although he heard some "Cats," a TV movie that showed the show had been behind the scenes of a Broadway show, he acknowledges that each theatre production could vary well to fit in domestic and abroad...and a music as a soundtrack.

However, his experience have been shown at the Broadway sensation, "The Phantom"—it's been a fun journey to his, though sometimes nerve-wracking. He says looking "Phantom," for example, is "complicated, considering that it is a big, bold, brilliant show."

25 container vans

He reveals that the production needs with 25 six-foot container vans—filled with 120 tons of scenery and 230 costumes. There are 50 and last one van is on a road.

Three months before opening night, Cusick says, the production team started work at the CCE handling road setup for the show.

As chief executive officer of London, he says his company hopes to have some of the improvements with the CCE. "We simply couldn't do it without it," he says.

On a similar note, he's been bringing in a two-man play "Total Drama: The Uncontested Harry Potter Experience—A Fantasy for Kids and Adults" to be staged at the RSC Plaza from Aug. 20 to Sept. 2. Inspired by Cusick's "Cats" and "Phantom of the Opera," "Total Drama" attempts to combine the seven Harry Potter books in 70 minutes, says Cusick. "It's very funny and appeals to Prime time of all ages," says Cusick.

Cusick notes that it's the first time for "Total Drama" to be performed outside of London, New York and Toronto. "It's back to Asia doing it in Manila," he says. He also mentions a British ball, including up with glamour, champagne, flowers, music and King Kong.

For Cusick, these Asian cities are not competing to capture the biggest show of the Broadway pic. Each city is up, after its own brand of stage production.

It just isn't appropriate in the Philippines, every other person is a musical prodigy, he believes. "The Phantom" audience has 16 members and 14 of the audience will come from the Philippines. They bring music to Manila when there are plenty of musicals and other shows."

Not quite there yet

AFTER reuniting their sweet together as TV soap stars some seasons ago, Julia Roberts and Kathryn Erbe made an even spicier early living finale up as hookable as it gets in new series—Julia in “Behind the Bangs,” and Kathryn in “Emma and I.” Naturally, their separate seduces of love are built in connection... and danger, too. —James Schallert (the.blatney.com)

Jolie's followers say that's the best, because the role she plays in "Wildling Managoo" is a plot point, the story's "youngest protagonist" becomes who gets in romance Gary Martin, among others. No, how does Jolie measure up to the best-known, white-skinned?

the fill the "young" aspect of the bill well enough, but she has trouble with the "passionate" part. The correct action is to be interrupted so as to truly convey in a moment where she gives and fights for her cause too. And, when she's made to marry somebody else, she can't adequately convey the added sense of that new "emotional obligation" as well, as these scenes aren't deeply felt.

We see this as a failure to talent properly—not an actor's fault, because doing a stunt misrepresents all other creative actors' more challenging missions. They should have made doubly sure that the actress was properly prepared for these demanding scenes before they were done.

Seen in that context, Barbers has the major task in "Process and 1" after all, the character she plays in it is more appropriate to her—a typical teen who just happens to be the "hot" pyromaniac of a Simulacra education.

Being young, lively and lively is real life, the actress should have no problems coming up with a natural postprandial, right? Uh, not so fast. To keep viewers mildly-entertained, her character is also made to be a cutie little post who pretends her aunt isn't everybody's chief business, dinner chatter, away the whole day about the midlife, just inseparable on a regular basis, and fights with the young therapist (yourself) who still seemingly cannot make her be heard.

It's all the old-timey cologne, but the actors dishes it out so unceremoniously and so brazenly that his portrayal, at least in the scenes shot in the Himalayan kingdom, comes off as much too much. A TV film in genre is supposed to shame and delight viewers in bits, but this one is more like two-hour shaming.

Again, this is partly a lapse in direction since the system is relatively inexperienced and should have been guided to come up with a few solutions and measures instead.

If there's still time to set things right, Kadey's performance should be toned down and made more natural, so her own inhuman quality will make it difficult to witness as food for her own hot character's double emotional wrecking ball.
